

Images: ©Mark Hardy

Elevating everyday living

In the heart of Hampshire, a couple has embarked on a transformative journey, breathing new life into their detached family home. Their vision was a seamless blend of modern aesthetics and functional design, realised through a partnership with The Myers Touch, renowned for its expertise in crafting contemporary kitchens that redefine living spaces. ▶

This bespoke project began with a couple's desire for a complete internal renovation and a new extension build, culminating in the creation of a spacious kitchen and living area. The challenge was clear: to merge the elegance of contemporary design with the practicality demanded by a family home.

Turning to The Myers Touch kitchen design studio, the homeowners entrusted their vision to experts who understand the delicate balance between aesthetics and functionality. The brief was a clean, minimalist kitchen living space that doesn't compromise on contrasting colours, providing room for statement appliances while maintaining a practical and sleek atmosphere.

The result is a kitchen that captivates from the first glance. The long, tall unit and sink run in a sophisticated dark graphite grey from SieMatic set the tone. Complemented by a large island featuring brushed steel drawer units under the Gaggenau hob, the design balances modernity with functionality.

The island, finished in graphite grey, not only serves as a visual centrepiece but also wraps around a structural pillar, supporting custom-steelwork and maximising the width of the space. A sleek white Silestone worktop adds the perfect contrast and complements the luxury ceramic floor tiles from Panoramics.

Statement pieces chosen include built-in Wolf & Sub Zero appliances, seamlessly integrated to maintain a clean-lined look. A custom grill adds the illusion of freestanding luxury. The Gaggenau hob features a built-in extractor, enhancing the light, open feel of the kitchen.

The design also incorporates biophilic elements with an antique mirrored glass splashback on the sink run, reflecting the space and featuring a floating shelf for herbs and plants. SieMatic glass cabinetry frames a Gaggenau wine fridge, showcasing favourite ceramics and tying the interior space together.

Venture below, and a Gaggenau Wine Cellar & Gun Store awaits, accessible through a glass floor that separates the kitchen and dining space. The result is a harmonious blend of contemporary cabinetry, sleek luxury appliances and innovative design solutions that transcend the structural challenges.

The completion of this project is a testament to the synergy between visionary homeowners and expert designers. The Myers Touch has transformed a house into a home, where luxury meets functionality and everyday living becomes an elevated experience. ●

www.themyerstouch.co.uk

